Borsto Aug. 1th. 1660.

The excursionists went aboard of the Ferry boat at Detroit, at 9 A. M. on Tuesday, the use of which was kindly tendered them by the G.

W.R. R. Oo., and sailed up and down the river for one hour—vairing the city of Detroit, which presents a beautiful appearance from the river. The party were in excellent spirits, not withstanding the long ride of the previous day, and the nocal gathering which lasted until near morning.

and the soonal guthering which lasted until near morning.

The opecial train left Windsor, at 10: 20 A. M. and all was done that could be for the party by the G. W. Co., who did not intend to be outdone in liberaity by the other Roads—and had it not been for the clouds of oust that floated through the cars a pleasanter ride could not have been taken. The senery was delightful and esjoyed by all. This Road is auperior in many respects.

At half past eight P. M. they reached the great Nisgars,—and proceeded at once to the Cataract House—which was filled to overflowing—the International was also well filled;—the crowd at this place was so great from various causes that a large number of ladies and gentlemen, were obliged to sleep in the carsebit the Exparations as, were all provided with maitable rooms. They expected to visit the city of Buffale this week, Thursdaylor Friday. Preparations are being made to give them a hospital called the second committees.

If the Reception Committees who meet the excursionists as they enter their cities, would look to their true enjoyment, they would not huddle them all into one hote while there are several that rank as first class, and deservingly. At Chiengo two well-conducted hotels were actively ignored—not to the comfort of the guest. At Detroot there was a general rush for the Russell House, but those who were so fortunate to be convicted and for the contract.

after noticing the coquetting and trading going on in different States between Douglas and the pre-slavery portion of the Bell men, gives its party friends in the three states the following very sensible advice:

Sespicious feolings have been waked up in the minds of many of the Union men that an offers is being made in some sections of the country to sell out to the Democracy for the scowed purpose of detesting the Regulblican. If such auspicious become general they will damage beyond expression the cause of the Union candidates, for the opposition cannot between the policy of the government—they feel keeply the effects of the missiscense in the results of the missiscense in the policy of the government—they feel keeply the effects of the missiscense in the results of the country in concerned—they dears the decision of John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency, and if they fail in that—we speak that which we find the week that which we find the week that which we find the policy of the government—they feel keeply the effects of the missiscense in the very many of our rational of the missiscent of the country in concerned—they deary the decision of John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency, and if they fail in that—we speak that which we find the missiscent of the country in concerned—they deary the decision of John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency, and it hay fail in that—we speak that which we know, to far as this section of the country in concerned—they deary the decision of John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency, John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency, and it hays fail in that—we speak that which we know, the fail of the policy of the government of the country in concerned—they deary the decision of John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency of the John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency of the John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency of the John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency of the John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency of the John Bell of Tennessee, to the Presidency of the John Bell

We subjoin a comparison of the articles imported from Europe, interfering with American manufactures:

Exrougham Apologizes.

The last arrival says:

Lord Brougham at the Statistical Congress, explained his remarks to Mr. Dallas relative to the persence of a negro delegate, and diaclair med any intention of insuit or disrespect.

Of Lord Brougham to New York Werks says:

Lord Brougham is now in his cighty-second year. Probably no man in England or anywhere else, ever exceeded him in that unlined the has given numerous instances. He accused Canning, in public debate, of "the most more stront" reaching to efficient that the whole laistory of political tergiversation could present; bringing the premier 17 his feet, with the excisamation, "it is false," and barely avoided a dual. He attacked Sir Robert Peel in the same manner, referring to the Duke of Wellington, and arying; "Him we scorn not—it is you we scorn; you, his mean, base, fawring parasite;" The patience of Peel, imperituable and politic as he funcally was, was no proof against in sail. Lord Brougham also insisted on the ejection of Chevaller Bussen, on a particular excession, from a seat in the House of Lords, which, though improperly taken, might have been concled by courteay. In early life, though he wrote for the Kainburgh, the managers were continually alarmed by his indiscretion, and in later years, his appearance in the upper house where the continually alarmed by his indiscretion, and in later years, his appearance in the upper house where the continually alarmed by his indiscretion, and in later years, his appearance in the upper house where the continual properly taken, might have been continually alarmed by his indiscretion, and in later years, to appear a lord in the super house where the continual properly taken, might have been continually alarmed by his indiscretion, and in later years, his appearance in the upper house where the continual properly taken, might have been continually alarmed by his indiscretion, and in later years, his appearance in the upper house where the conormal problem in the properly taken, and the properly taken, and everything."

Ha lordship's latest fest smarks of the flavor of his yeath and prime, and proves that "his natural force," if "abated," is not disqualified. A Currious Picture melonging to Senntor Saimmer.

The picture known as the "Miracle of St.
Mark," now on exhibition at the Athenseum, is interesting, both from its artist and from its subject. It is attributed to the Venitian paintpainter training, but from its artist and from its subject. It is attributed to the Venitian paintpicture by him, which is so much admired at Venice. If not by this illustrious critis himself, it is obviously by a contemporary of the Venitian school. The peculiar and other characterissues of that school are unmistakable.

The subject is founded on alegesd of the church, which is particularly described by the late Mrs. Jameson is her admirable work on "Sacred and Legendary Art" (p. 91). It is the silboration of a slave by the Apostic St. Mark, who descends to rescue him from the cruel decree of the judge. The woman among the speculators in front, so Mrs. Jameson saye, has always been admired for the life-like viracity of her attitude and expression, and the dramatic grouping is wonderful. Bearath the picture at the Athenseum is an early print by Mathan, which attents the ambanticity of the copy here.

In a speech by Mr. Saimer, at Fassull Hal, shortly after the passage of the Tegitive Share bill, as long are as 1500, he thus grainer to this very picture, of which he has recently obtained this meisms copy:

"There is a lagsind of Venice, consecuted by the penni of one of her greatest artists, that the Apostie St. Mark sudmy descended into the public square and bridging descended in the month of the passage of the seccrated by such a judgment, may the good Apostic, with valiant arm, once met descend to and other organs of importers and ceiton planters, thunk this slave negro, his cotton hole and importing factor, should be the sole objects of American legislation! This they call "conservation," and all through our esides there relatedingent men who actual think thus is really conservative!

If there be anything absolutely destructive, it is the attempt to perpetuate the negro dynasty. If there be anything the very extreme of political folly, it is the attempt to maintain this domination of a minority over a large majority of the American people. The Republican party that taken the lead in overturning the negro dominion; and its work will not be complete till it has revolutionized the measures of the Government and taught politicians the value of a freeman and the syndiffence of labor.

Memory Service & Ross.—Gestimen: 1, to use of the 200 ten sinks eresised by you at the Incine Plane No. 6, wast of the Moriz Canal, in March 1857, has strongtheast my opinion expressed in my previous ensistents, that it is not only durable, but securits, and easily softwards. There has been weighted on it this season, from April to this time, about 584,000 tons, without altering in any respect the sensitiveness of the beam, or the accuracy of the results; this, for a platform 70 feet long and 30 wide, with a double track, and the loads weighted on alternate sides, is resommentation enough.

CHICAGO. Several thousand people were present. His feets are thus described:

At 4 r m, Mons, Blondin, dressed as an Indian Chief, was escorted from the Valley House to the rope on Paint street. In a few minutes and be ascended the rupe and proceeded rapidly along, till near the middle, where he laid on his back for a few minutes and again rising, almost ran till near the court house tower, thaving walked adutance o 600 feet, at a high of 100 test from the ground) when he stopped to be photographed. He then returned to the middle of the rope, slood on his head and went through some astonishing gymnassic performances on a sizek rope, all of which were enthuniastically cheered by the immense crowd. He was on the rope about three quarters of an hour, and when he descended he was received the shour, and when he descended he was received aby the enthusiastic people, and carried in a chair on their absolders in triumph to the Valley House. Cheer after cheer greeted him as he passed along. To night at 10 o'clock he sacends again, trandling a wheelbarrow, amid a brilland display of freworks. Everybody is highly delighted.

A Buke Gives Hamboldt the Lie. Humboldt's letters to Varnhagen Von Rose are still making a stir in Germany, where many editions have been printed. Many of its statements are disputed; and it is related that the Grand Duke of Saxe Weimer has taken a very decided method of contradicting a story told about him. The story is this, as given by Humboldt to Varnhagen: "Unce, alter a gestleman not belonging to the nobility had lef. the company, he (the Grand Duke) expressed with great satisfaction the comfortable feeling. "Now we are amongst ourselves." Another time, when it was noticed there were thirteen at dinner table, he replied connolingly that "there were two commoners amongst them who did not count for anything." This he told Humboldt in French, because, as he said, "these two would not understand it."

When the book arrived in Weimar the Grand Duke took a copy, wrete on the margin copposite this passage: "Trips is a lie.—Karl August," and then deposited it in the town library.

Napters—Adversity seems to have a wholesome effect on the King of Naples. Fear extoris from him those reforms which he refused to the appeals of reason and humanity. He grants the Constitution so long danied; turn out his tyrannies! Ministry, and puts in others in whom the people have confidence; shoulabes his favorite punishment, the bustiands; suppresses his secret dangeous; orders off his special tools, the Royal Breard; and prays for a friendly alliance with his hitherto embittered enemy, Victor Essured.

Kaples thus profits by the loss of Sicily, and the dread of invasies. So long as Garinaldi's sword hangs over his head, the King of Naples will probably govern wisely and liberally. The only fear is, that, upon the withdrawal of danger, he may relapse into his former habits.
